

Newball, Hal & Michele

Hal and Michele Newball are both medical doctors who have retired from their medical practices with both time and money, thanks to the Quixtar business. Harold H. Newball is known internationally for his academic achievement in the field of pulmonary medicine. His medical career started at Harvard Medical School and continued with further training in chest diseases at the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute, a division of the National Institutes of Health. He next went to The Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine as a Professor of Medicine. Hal's research has led to well over 100 publications of articles in prestigious medical journals, chapters in several books, and his own book entitled "Immunopharmacology of the Lung."

Michele Newball received her medical degree in her homeland at the University of Haiti School of Medicine. After two years of medical training in the area of general surgery, she opted to launch a career in public health. She received her Masters in Public Health from the University of Miami School of Medicine, and continued her studies for a doctorate degree in Public Health at Johns Hopkins School of Public Health and Hygiene. She has specialized in the area of infectious diseases, specifically focusing on the prevention of HIV, tuberculosis, and hepatitis. In 1987, she founded Partners in Health Protection, Inc., a women's international organization, and has been instrumental in establishing prevention programs for women and adolescents worldwide. She is an accomplished physician, an international speaker, an extraordinary university professor, and a recognized health counselor – as well as a worldwide crusader of women's rights.

Together, Hal and Michele represent strong team players of the Britt System and have made an impact in the lives of thousands of IBOs around the world.

"This business is our life, our passion. We build it every day with faith, enthusiasm, the right attitude, and great work habits. And because we believe in the power of the Britt system and the integrity of the Quixtar business, we will not let anything or anyone stop us. We are moving on and our purpose is to help others move on, too, and reach the mountaintop. See you there!"

Site Design and Maintenance by Atlantic BT